

Peace Week
DELAWARE
October 3–11, 2020™

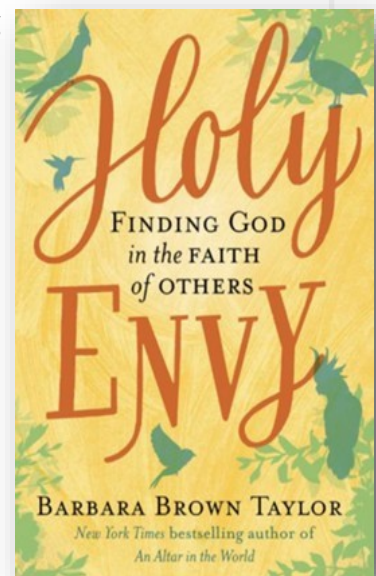

Hanover Interfaith Book Discussion, an event of Delaware Peace Week 2020. We will host persons of many faiths, including no faith, on Sunday, October 11 from 4 to 6 pm. As always in this year of the pandemic, we will arrange for all to be safe and healthy. There will be a break at about the midpoint for light international snacks and conversation.

The book that we will discuss is Holy Envy by best-selling author Barbara Brown Taylor. In this case she is using the word “envy” not to mean a sin, but an acknowledgement of the value of certain beliefs of religions that are not our own.

We want everyone to have access to a copy of Holy Envy. Here are the options:

- borrow from your local library in New Castle County
- interlibrary loan from libraries in the state
- borrow a copy from Hanover that we can lend for up to two weeks. For this option, contact Alice Davis (302) 429-0607
- buy the book from the Bookshelf in Hockessin (support a local independent book store)
- buy the book from Amazon: hardbound, paperback, audiobook, or Kindle

Hanover is at the corner of 18th St. and Baynard Boulevard in Wilmington. The street address is 1801 N. Jefferson. All parking is on the street. On Sundays, parking is allowed on both sides of Baynard Blvd. The Hanover building is accessible.
